1. On 25 June 1954, the Panzer Kaserne (4001) in Bad Freienwalde was occupied to capacity. Tents which quartered personnel, motor vehicles and, presumably, tanks were still observed in the training area near Rathsdorf. On 16 June, 6 T-34 tanks passed through the town. They came from the direction of the barracks installations and went toward Falkenberg. On 21 June, about 30 new truck trailers were detained at the Bad Freienwalde railroad station and were shuttled to the barracks installations by trucks.

2. On 2 July, the Panzer Kaserne was occupied by about 1,000 soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets with tank, artillery signal and motor transport insignia. On 10 June, 10 trucks towing 85-mm AT guns, 8 trucks carrying ammunition, dummies and personnel, 2 trucks towing field kitchens, 1 sedan and 1 jeep left the installation toward Eberswalde. The vehicles carried a total of about 400 soldiers. Training was conducted in mixed units, which were organized as follows: 1 half-track vehicle mounting a twin-barreled AA gun, 2 armored personnel carriers each occupied by about 25 soldiers, 2 trucks towing 57-mm AT guns, 13 sidecar motorcycles and an undetermined number of trucks with personnel. Four half-track vehicles and 4 BA-64 armored scout cars entered the Alt-Ranft training area for firing with live ammunition. The soldiers had been equipped with new small arms, including rifles similar to the former German rapid-fire rifles and submachine guns similar to the former German model-42 submachine guns. About 15 trucks daily engaged in driving school

June, an undetermined number of soldiers received instruction on about 4 x 85-mm AT guns, 3 x 76.2-mm field guns, and T-34/85 tanks

The preliminary construction of the apartment house for officer families was almost completed.

On 10 July, the Luftnachrichten Kaserne (4241) in Bormu was occupied by 1,800 to 2,000 soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets with artillery, tank and signal insignia, and a few soldiers wearing blue-bordered black epaulets. Between 7 and 18 June, training was unusually intensive. Up to 31 columns of 30 to 40 soldiers went to the training area. Identical tanks
